

Report Shows Broken Arrow Roads in Good Condition

Broken Arrow's streets are the City's largest asset, valued at $576.1 million dollars. Earlier this year, we retained IMS Infrastructure Management Systems to determine the condition of the City's vast network of streets. Knowing the condition of each road helps us prioritize repair schedules and propose street projects for General Obligation Bonds.

During the December 6, 2016 City Council meeting, IMS Infrastructure Management Systems presented the results of their data collection analysis. Here are the highlights of that report:

- Broken Arrow's roads are in overall good condition and surpass the national standards.
- IMS estimates a budget of just over $6 million a year is needed to maintain the quality of our roads. Sales tax revenue allotted for street maintenance only provides half that amount; therefore, major road projects will need additional funding through General Obligation Bonds going forward. The list of work to be done each year will be in the Financial Report distributed in September.

The IMS report scientifically analyzes the life-span of Broken Arrow streets, and this will be a useful guide in scheduling future maintenance. View a video of the IMS presentation at www.BrokenArrowOK.gov/STREETREPORT.

$18.7 Million in New Projects to Begin in Broken Arrow

The City of Broken Arrow is selling $18.7 million of General Obligation (GO) Bonds approved by voters in 2014. The sale will pay for several streets, public safety, parks improvements, and stormwater projects. Approximately $30.1 million of authorized 2014 bonds remain and will be sold over the next two years.

"With the upcoming bond sale, we will be able to move forward on projects that are important to our residents," said Broken Arrow City Manager Michael Spurgeon. "We're excited to complete these necessary improvements that will continue to enhance the quality of life in our community."

Here are some of the project highlights. View the full list at www.BrokenArrowOK.gov/BOND.
